THE ANGLO-CHINESE CALENDAR MANUAL.

Handbook of reference for the determination of Chinese Dates, during the period from 1860 to 1869; with comparative. Tables of Annual and Meusual Designations to, to. Compiled by WILLIAM FREDE-BIOK MAYERS, H.M.C.S.

Author's Preface.

Most persons whose avocations or studies are connected even remotely with Chinese subjects are wont to confess the need of a convenient manual of reference for the purpose of determining dates according to either the European or the Chinese method of computation; and a system of compari sun for the names attributed to years, months, and other periods is also frequently a desideratum with translators and readers of Chinese literature. The compiler of the following tables has thought accordingly, that their publication in convenient form may prove useful, although much yet remains to be done for the elaboration of comparative calendars, etc. that should leave nothing to be desired. With the exception of the Cyclical Table of Years, and the Table of Solar Terms, both of which were originally compiled by Dr. Morrison, and afterwards republished with Blankets, Watches, Clocks, improvements in Williams' Commercial Guide, from which (with some alteration) they are now copied, the whole of the matter assembled in the following pages is for the first time made accessible to general

Quite a little fleet of ships from home have arrived within the last four and twenty hours Maitland, Deerhound, St. Germaine, Chuian, and Parejero. The two last-named report heavy weather, especially the Pareiero. Shortly after rounding the Cape, on 2nd May, she shipped a terrific sea, which carried away everything astern, whee included, killed the first mate and seriously injured the two men at the wheel. This terrible weather lested until the 4th May.

OUR Canton correspondent writing on the Worship dismissed the case, saying that the 10th, says :--

With the changes which the City of Rams has undergone since the days of Dr | the day before yesterday, while it was very Bowring, the reputation of its native merchants seems to have fallen to a lower standard too. The high opinion eutertained by the learned Doctor, of the Cantonese for their integrity and honesty, remained unchallenged until last year, when some native bankers collapsed—an event which was looked upon as unprecedented in the commercial history of Canton. During the past few days our Colestia friends have been reporting of there being weeping and gnashing of teeth amongst some of their countrymen. It appears a native merchant of high standing, and posnessed of a peculiar tact which he did not fail to use to the best advantage, had extensive monetary dealings with So high seems to have stood the credit of this magnate, that the bankers actually implored him to horrow of them large sums of money on interest-an offer which he was not such a fool as not to his high standing. But as one's barometer does not always indicate fair weather, dark clouds began gathering in the enterprising Celestial's horizon; and as it happened that drafts for remittances to your place. commanded a premium just then, in order to give a finishing stroke to the " putting through" business, the Celestial succeeded in cashing his cheques on his Branch at your place, to the extent of $40,000. Mr C. F. A. Saugster charged a tailor with having stolen from his house twelve yards of flannel. Complainant stated that he had employed the prisoner as a tailor frequently, and that he had been working for him (31r S.) in that capacity for the last week. On missing the piece of flannel produced, Mr 8. sent a constable, with a muster of the stolen flaunel, to the house of the prisoner, where the piece of flaunel (value 86) was found. Prisoner hitherto had borne a good character; and his wife, who was also charged, was not included in the charge made by Mr Sangster, -His Worship observed that it was a very bad case ; prisoner had been guilty of a breach of trust which was a very grave offence, he having had access to the complainant's wardrobe. -Prisoner said that there was a very large piece of flannel at his master's place, and he appropriated a small piece for his children. - His Worship stated that he would under the painful necessity of sending pri-

(Before his Lordship Judge SMALE.) June 11, 1869, THE MIN CASE.

HE COMPTOIR D'ESCOMPTE DE PARIS AND ANOTHER V. RODGER AND OTHERS. Application for Repayment of Sums paid under reversed judgment.

This case was continued to-day. Mr Hayllar, after quoting a number o ages in further elucidation of his argument stated that he questioned his Lordship's uthority to give costs here: but as nterest there was not a word in the judgment of the Privy Conneil. They were a present volunteers in paying over the major sum even; and though they had lodged that part of the claim in Court they contended that they were not liable for costs or interest.

Mr Whyte, in reply, said that, though the difficulties of law were proverbial, he had never seen so much difficulty arising from the decision of the Privy Council and he twitted the Banks for having, though incorporations, shown the amoun of soul necessary to the payment of the major sum voluntarily into Court. the question of interest, he said there was absence of any telegraphic communication | no case exactly in point; and it was between this and your place, the Celestial somewhat difficult question. Taking the eading of the order, in connection wit the approach of a storm, "out and slip"_ | the rules of the Court, he thought that his Lordship would agree with him that interest followed the repayment of the major sum. The order clearly meant restitution in full; and as the Banks had been illegally in possession of the money for one year and nine months, was it reasonable that they should hand back the principal only, say ing, "We have used your money for that time: here is your money, and you may be very glad that from our sense of justice you have got that much."

> His Lordship said that he had not muc difficulty about the principal and the costs, but he had not been able to see the ques tion of costs with clearness. He would adjourn the judgment pending any arrangement which might be come to. He wished to know the foundation of the Official Assignee for his action in the matter of the notice not to pay the money. The result might be a bill of equity, and then there was no end to the litigation; he could see that the Manchester firms had had quite enough litigation in connection with this

The Attorney General said that it would be very hard indeed if the money should be locked up during a long bill of equityperhaps for years. Even if the Official Assignes had a good claim, the money could essily be handed over on security, and the bill filed against them. The money had already been out of the hands of his clients more than a year and-a-half, and it was most disheartening to think that it might be locked up still longer in another action. His Lordship said that the question -and it was a very difficult point to decide—was, whether Mr Huffam, as Official Assignee in the bankruptcy here (Still and Maclean's), could act as agent of the other. estate (Lyall's) in England, and claim on behalf of creditors who had proved in England as against the Lyall estate.

The Attorney General said there were hee or four notices now, and the Official Assignee would be rather harassed in the

His Lordship said that the best way mitted to counsel for an opinion; and he would adjourn the judgment until that should be done. He hoped they might be able to arrange matters.

The case of Pipon v. Bosman was fixed for Wednesday next; and the Court then

This scale seems light enough, by com parison to the punishments inflicted by English law; but we believe even this has been proportionably reduced, since the publication of the work named. One good rule, however, exists. Aggravation, which it is left to the discretion of the Magistrate to appraise, is recognised in a repetition of offences. But this cannot be frequently applied at the Mixed Court, or many old offenders would have been annihilated it kept a man safely and honograply in his months ago. Theft from near relations is considered a very venial; offence, -the theory springing, no doubt, spread like the goldbeater's skin over from the clannish principle which still rules among Chinese families; this would suggest that one member has more or less claim on the property of another, and should not be punished too heavily for helping himself. Obtaining money under false pretences is punished by the same scale as stealing; but, under the principle we named at the outset—that the extent of the crime denends on the extent of the harm done-an unsuccessful attempt at fraud is held two degrees less criminal. A successful swindthe same theory, writing books on sorcery is punished by banishment or decapitation, according to the number of persons affected

> In assault cases, this principle of assessing the amount of injury done leads to elaborate calculations. A blow that leaves no mark is visited with 20 strokes: if a cud gel is used, with 30; if a hurt or wound occasioned, 40 blows are given; and if wound swells or inflames, another ten blows are added. Tearing away more than one inch of hair, is punished with 50 blows breaking a tooth, toe, or finger, with 100 blows; breaking two teeth or other bones, 60 blows and one year's banishment Sometimes, these corporal punishments are commuted for a fine, based on the number of days' work which the injured parts oses. An amusing quarrel between two fish-sellers came up the other day at the Mixed Court. The plaintiff had taken up a stand which the defendant had been using for two months. The latter brought up some friends to oust the intruder, who at first defended himself manfully and gave his opponent two severe blows. Finding, however, that he was likely to eventually get the worst of it. he fell down and sham med dead, was taken to the Police Station. and brought at the Court next day, as plaintiff. As it was found, however, that he had nothing the matter with him, his position was summarily reversed, and he was ordered to kneel and receive sentence for the wounds he had given the defendant The principle which ruled here was that, in the case of two persons fighting, each shall be punished for the hurt done by him to the other; the scale of punishment of the one who has right on his side, however, being reduced by two degrees. The judgment thus becomes a matter of arithmetic. A gave blows which showed no marks, and is, under

HUMAN TAILS .- A discussion having originated in Once a Week, on human tails, a correspondent of the Times writes :- "In the autumn of 1850 I was font, under orders from the Horse Guarde, to superintend the volunteering of menthers of the Irish militia regiments to the regular army. One of the regiments I went to was stationed at Castlebar, and there I met a captain of the Land Transport Corps, then being organized, engage; on the same business as myself, but entisting only for his own corps. On the first day of our competition the men discovered that his terms were better than mine, and one young man who presented himself, first for the Land Frausport Corps and afterwards to me, on my asking why he had been rejected for the mounted corps said, Because I have a tail, sir.' There was a surgeon present, who at once examined him in my presence, and I can vouch for the fact that he had a tail and a most unmistakable one, it being about an inch and three quarters or two inches long, thick at the junction with the body, and tapering to a blunt end." THE FRENCH FLEET. - The following is a correct list of the French navy at the present time :- 1. THE "TREATY PORTS OF CHINA & JAPAN," AND "NOTES AND or by deputy, be present and take part in QUERIES. ON CHINA AND JAPAN. EXTRACTS FROM REVIEWS.

> (From the "Strasts Times," July 27, 1868.) Some time ago we had occasion to remark upon the progress that Literature as represented by the Press had made and was making in the East, and our attention has again been called to the subject by the receipt of a Hongkong publication which deserves some notice and which we have much pleasure in introducing to the knowledge of our readers. We allude to Notes and Queries on thing and Japan, published monthly by Mr Saint, the proprietor of the China Mail newspaper. This publication is well printed on good paper, and in size and ahape is very like its well-known namesake or prototype at home, and is equally a mine containing very curious and useful information regarding the language, literature, history, manners and customs of the Chinese and in a less degree of the Japanese. It says a good deal for the extent and stability of the footing of Europeans in China, that such a publication as this should be established and conducted with apparently successful vigour.

> The publication is altogether a very interesting one, and wishing it every success, we commend it to the attention and support of our readers.

(From the "Friend of India," June 4, 1868.) We acknowledge with thanks the receipt f the numbers for the current year of Notes and Queries," a most deserving Anglo-Chinese monthly, edited by Mr N. B.
